CAMPUS CULTURE CAN PREVENT OR PROMOTE SEXUAL VIOLENCE

This graphic is not meant to be all-inclusive or exhaustive, but a mapping of key cultural factors relating to campus sexual violence. Sexual violence can be committed by anyone and committed against anyone, regardless of gender identity, sexual orientation, age, race, immigration status, or any other identity. A key component of addressing sexual violence is culture change - identifying and transforming those cultural norms that promote sexual violence to norms that prevent and interrupt it in order to make us all safer.